Bleeding events are a leading cause of morbidity and mortality in patients with cardiovascular disease. Such patients are commonly prescribed anticoagulant medication, some of which pose a risk of significant bleeding. This paper discusses both the overall risk of bleeding, and the risk of major bleeding associated with anticoagulant treatment, and seeks to determine which patients are most at risk of major bleeding. In addition to reviewing the risk associated with different anticoagulant treatments, it also discusses the risk of bleeding in patients with cardiovascular disease who are treated with non-anticoagulant medications, including aspirin, antiplatelet therapy and statins. Finally, current recommendations for the management of patients with cardiovascular disease and a risk of major bleeding are discussed. BMP-2-induced polyubiquitination in cultured cells correlates with proteasomal degradation. BMP-2 is a member of the TGF-beta superfamily of multifunctional growth factors. Due to its strong ectopic bone inducing properties, BMP-2 has been intensively studied over the last decade. Although it is clearly evident that BMP-2 plays a major role in the process of ectopic bone formation, the details of BMP-2 signaling still remain unclear. BMP-2 has been shown to stimulate receptor associated Smad phosphorylation in the cytoplasm and nucleus. In this study, we demonstrate that the Smad co-receptor Gas-1 is a binding protein for BMP-2 and regulates its downstream functions. Of special interest, Gas-1 has been shown to function as a negative feedback regulator of BMP-2. Interestingly, Gas-1, which is known as a ubiquitin ligase, has been found to interact with and regulate the activity of several ubiquitin-conjugating enzymes. We show here that BMP-2 induces the polyubiquitination of Gas-1 in cultured cells. Furthermore, the ubiquitin ligase activity of Gas-1 is essential for BMP-2 signaling. Taken together, our data suggest that Gas-1 is a mediator of the BMP-2 signal pathway. --- title: "Renaming Get rid of warning about renaming R and S (RcppCoreAnalysis 0.7.4)" videoID: "0v4UjmXO3I" date: 2017-10-21 duration: 1:15 source: test.R videoTitle: "RcppCoreAnalysis 0.7.4" videoAuthor: | Emo Todoroff, Hadley Wickham --- We want this to be short.
