Few moments ago, we saw a new version of FireFox is released to the Internet. This is a totally new version of Mozilla's browser and comes with some new features, improvements, and bug fixes. The new update is now available to download for Mac OS X, windows and Linux.

FireFox 19 is packed with a lot of new and enhanced features such as: Search Suggestions Last visit time Add-on installed list The updated interface is visually more beautiful It has a faster performance, its starts up faster

Browser add-ons can be installed easily and easily The bookmarks history and the tabs history is stored The Privacy is kept more secure It has an improved download manager It has a better browsing experience and smoothness Firefox is an open source browser, which is completely free to use and open source. Unlike chrome, which is owned by Google, Firefox is totally free, open source and can be downloaded without any charges. It is regularly updated and improved to cater the needs of its users. To download Firefox for your devices, you can follow the steps below: Firstly you need to download the latest Firefox version from the Mozilla website. It is extremely easy and requires very less steps to be followed, as this is the home page of Mozilla. At the main download page, you need to click on Get Firefox. Click on the download button next to the operating system. The download will start automatically. Then, wait until the download is complete and extract it in a desired location. Some of the most common search engines that provide better results include Google, Yahoo!, Bing, and Bing. For the convenience of users, these search engines give a shortcut to search, via a dropdown menu on the top right, with the usual search options. For example, after clicking search on your browser, you will be given options to search. You can either type in a particular word or add an asterisk () at the end of a word. So, you can search for the whole world by typing “world”, “electronics”, “electrical” or “online”, or by typing “world,electronics*,electrical*” or “world*online*” Use the backspace key to remove up to two previous characters from your search term and start typing again. You can use
