Descargar Prescom 2010 Keygen 284 Win..After burning the party's core base of working-class voters with his pledge to cancel all of President Barack Obama's signature health care law, Republican Mitt Romney will soon be forced to make good on his promise to repeal the law if he is elected. If Obama wins reelection, he and his advisors know that a Republican-controlled Congress will likely be unable to repeal the law. Nevertheless, Republicans are betting that by making good on their campaign promise to repeal the law in their first year in the White House, they will be able to turn out their conservative base of supporters for the November election. If Romney is able to do this, it would be a boon for the Republican Party. In theory, the election of Mitt Romney to the presidency could result in a Republican Congress that would be inclined to repeal major portions of the Affordable Care Act. As the Washington Post writes: Whether a Republican congressional majority would execute an early repeal of Obama's signature domestic legislation — with the campaign promise of a replacement in place — is an open question. If the economy improves substantially, and if there are electoral incentives to pass a replacement, repealing the law would be the most likely path. But it is not the only option. And analysts differ on what political opportunities, if any, it might present to Republicans. If Romney wins, it is possible that a Republican Congress would vigorously challenge the Affordable Care Act's role in the health care reform law and attempt to pass a replacement in 2013 or 2014, according to an analysis by The Washington Post. But the fate of the Affordable Care Act is far from certain. Health care remains a top priority for voters, and polls show that voters are looking for greater protections. Republicans are betting that if the vote is held today, roughly as many people will support the Republican candidate for president as will support the Democratic candidate. But if the election was held today, the Democratic candidate for president, Barack Obama, would be leading in all likely states. It is also likely that Romney's budget proposals will disappoint voters because they have been built on unrealistic projections. As Nicholas Kurowski wrote earlier this month for The American: If Romney's plan is sound, 6d1f23a050
